Learn about the Missoula County Community Justice Department.

The Missoula County Community Justice Department (CJD) works collaboratively with Missoula city and county governments and the community to continually improve the criminal legal system for everyone.

Our goals are to increase community safety, improve safety and healing for survivors of crime, safely reduce the jail population, increase court appearances for those accused, and address racial inequities in the criminal legal system. We care for the people who live here and believe that a fair and effective justice system is foundational to a healthy and thriving community.

Our team leads and supports multi-agency partnerships and projects by convening coalitions and working groups and strategically aligning activities across the justice and crisis response systems.

The department has three divisions: Crime Victim Advocate Division, Court Support Services Division, and Justice Initiatives Division.

CRIME VICTIM ADVOCATE DIVISION supports victims of all types of crimes, prioritizing those who have experienced intimate partner violence and abuse to improve survivor safety and healing. Services are free and confidential and are delivered by the division's Civil and Criminal Advocates:

- Civil Advocates provide walk-in crisis counseling, assistance in applying for orders of protection, referrals to services, and support through the court system.
- Criminal Advocates are assigned to city and county law enforcement and prosecution offices to offer advocacy and supportive services from the time of an initial crime report to the resolution of a criminal case.

COURT SUPPORT ADVOCATE DIVISION improves outcomes for defendants of crime to ensure community safety, increase court appearances, reduce new criminal charges, and safely reduce the jail population. This division has four programs.

- Community Service Program connects people convicted of crimes with community service placements and monitoring as a part of their participation in the Missoula County Attorney's Calibrate program, Youth Court, and Justice Court's ROAD Court. The program is an alternative sanction to incarceration. Staff develop volunteer opportunities with local nonprofit agencies, provide worksite information to participants, monitor progress, and report successes and challenges to the referring agency.
- Pretrial Assistance to Support Success (PASS) supports misdemeanor pretrial defendants in reducing failures to appear, case processing time, new arrests, and incarceration rates. Support includes reminders about court dates, assistance with compliance with pretrial conditions of release, and guidance with accessing community programs and services, including housing, behavioral health care services, job services, and substance use treatment.
- Pretrial Service Program monitors and supports felony pretrial defendants released from jail while their case is processed through the courts. The program prioritizes public safety, assesses the risks and needs of defendants, facilitates defendants' appearances in court, helps defendants access community services to secure housing, employment, mental health care, and substance use treatment, supervises compliance with conditions of release from jail, and reports violations of the conditions to the court.
- Public Safety Assessment Program uses an evidence-based nine-factor tool to assess and predict whether a defendant will engage in new criminal activity, commit a new violent crime, or fail to appear in court if released before trial and provides judges, prosecutors, and defense attorneys with additional information about whether a defendant can succeed in the community while awaiting trial.

JUSTICE INITIATIVES DIVISION works to improve the criminal legal system in Missoula County by building partnerships and leading efforts to address systemic problems that can cause harm to victims and defendants and create challenges for our community.

The division also provides targeted study and analysis, program development, funding development and management, project implementation, and specialized training and supports multi-agency initiatives to meet emerging community issues. Partnerships and programs include:

- The Criminal Justice Coordinating Council (CJCC) Executive Board, a formal committee of key legal system stakeholders who are either elected or senior-level policymakers. These stakeholders meet every other month to discuss matters concerning the criminal legal system.
- The CJCC Community Outreach Meeting, which invites program managers, system leaders, and staff from more than 15 nonprofits, jail ministries, tribal nations, and other government entities to present progress updates regarding various justice system initiatives.
- Family Violence Intervention and Education Sessions, two-hour, court-ordered classes designed to decrease violent behavior in misdemeanor offenders of family violence. Classes include information about trauma and the impacts of adverse childhood experiences, conflict skills, and stories from reformed offenders.
- Just Response, Missoula County's coordinated community response team, which brings together all justice system partners and local service providers to improve victim safety and increase accountability in cases including abuse, intimate partner violence, stalking, and human trafficking.
- Partners for Reintegration (PFR), a community coalition of individuals, social services, faith communities, and local and state agencies assisting those returning from incarceration or treatment to successfully reintegrate into the Missoula community.
- Rural Program, which provides critical support and advocacy services to underserved rural community members in Missoula County and Mineral County who face barriers to receiving help after experiencing domestic or sexual violence or stalking.
  - Safety and Justice Challenge: Pretrial, Diversion, and Reentry Programs, which provide evidence-based recommendations and strategies to reduce recidivism through pretrial services, diversion, and re-entry programs to address disparities and improve outcomes in Missoula's criminal legal system.

CJD FUNDING SUPPORTS OUR COMMUNITY

The department provides grant writing, administration, and technical assistance to local nonprofit service providers and justice system partners. We manage over $2 million in federal, state, and foundation grants to support complex, multi-agency initiatives to meet department goals. Funds added support for the following service providers:

- The Rural Program, which provided advocacy and support services to 266 victims of sexual assault, domestic/dating violence, stalking, and child sexual abuse in Mineral and Missoula counties.
- YWCA Shelter Advocates provided emergency shelter to 30 rural survivors of intimate partner violence and 28 family members (including children), totaling 2,560 bed nights.
- Ries Law Group provided legal services to 16 rural survivors of sexual violence including orders of protection, divorce, custody, child and spousal support, and other family matters, housing advocacy, and crime victim's rights, totaling more than 280 hours of legal services.
- Montana Legal Services Association provided 428 hours of civil legal services to 14 domestic violence survivors in Mineral County. Legal issues included parenting plans, orders of protection, divorce, and parenting plan modifications.
- First Step Sexual Assault Nurse Practitioners (SANEs), who provide 24/7 coverage, ensuring people reporting sexual assault and strangulation have access to quality medical care and forensic evidence collection. First Step provided 59 adult sexual assault evaluations, 20 adolescent sexual assault evaluations, and 18 strangulation evaluations.
- Western Montana Mental Health Center, which provided more than 400 substance use evaluations in 2023. A judge often orders these evaluations as a condition of release from jail. When defendants cannot access an evaluation, they may stay in jail longer.
- The Montana Office of State Public Defender, which provided case management services to more than 200 Indigenous defendants navigating the criminal justice system to reduce failure to appear for court and probation violations.

CJD PROVIDES TECHNICAL SUPPORT AND TRAINING

In addition to the CJD's support of individuals, the CJD team provides support, training, and technical assistance to various community partners. Some activities in 2023 included:

- Crime Victim Advocate staff provided training on domestic violence-related issues to YWCA advocates; University of Montana School of Social Work, School of Psychology, and Criminal Justice Program students; Missoula Police Department; and Missoula County Public Schools.
- Crime Victim Advocate manager provided 364 hours of clinical supervision to seven staff members seeking licensure through the Montana Board of Behavioral Health.
- Just Response hosted a two-day conference, attended by more than 40 participants, with four national experts speaking on best practices for responding to domestic violence and intimate partner violence.
- Grant funds supported travel and training for more than 20 partners, including judges, law enforcement officers, advocates, pretrial service specialists, and case managers, to attend four national conferences.
